Office: 135 Old Civil Engineering
Office hours: Tues 9-11, Wed 1:15-3:15 And by appointment

Course Statement
We will look at the nature of work and how it has changed over time, worker-created institutions, and government policy related to labor and business.

Goals
- To learn about U.S. labor history and how workers have impacted political economy over time
- To learn critical reading skills and gain confidence in oral communication and leading discussions

Learning Outcomes
Area E Approved Learning Outcome: Student will demonstrate the ability to describe the social, political, and economic forces that influence social behavior.
This course is about the history of labor and working-class issues in the United States. Students will learn how social, political, and economic forces influence social behavior through an examination of primary documents, lectures, and secondary readings. Students will demonstrate that they have met the Area E learning outcome through the writing of essays, class discussion, and oral presentations. At the end of this course, students will be able to describe the ways in which working-class people impacted U.S. political economy from the 19th century to the present. Students will also gain critical reading skills and effective oral and written communication skills.

Format
HTS 3006 will consist of short lectures, class discussion, and student presentations.

Honor Code
Georgia Tech students are on the honor system. Therefore, cheating in any form is prohibited and will not be tolerated. When this is detected, a “ZERO” grade is given for the assignment. This includes plagiarizing from any sources. Plagiarism: Copying or summarizing any material from the internet or any other sources without proper citation. If you are unsure about what constitutes plagiarism, please check with me. (See: www.deanofstudents.gatech.edu/Honor/).

Classroom Etiquette
Attendance is mandatory. Please arrive on time and remain for the duration of class. No cell phones or other electronic devices allowed in class. This includes laptops. Group discussion is a key feature of this course, so we will all get to know one another, refer to individuals by name, give courteous attention to all speakers, and actively participate in intellectual conversations. If you have any concerns about speaking in public, please see me and we can work on strategies. If you have emergencies or other crucial circumstances that require you to come late or leave early, please let me know in advance and we can decide the best course of action.

Course Requirements
1. Group presentations
2. Short analysis papers
   a. Everyone must turn in an analysis of Scraping By
   b. Your second analysis is a book of your choosing but cannot be the book you present on to class
3. Final theme essay based on readings and discussion (there will be no final exam in this class)

Readings

How to Read for class
Reading is an active process. You must read critically. This does not mean you must find something to criticize about the material. Instead, you have to read closely, analyze the argument and the use of sources and then decide what you think about what the author is trying to say. Are you convinced? Did something challenge your assumptions? Were your ideas confirmed or contradicted? As you read ask yourself the following questions and take notes:

- What is the subject?
- What is the author’s argument about this subject?
- Why does it matter (what’s the big picture)?
- What sort of evidence is used and is it used effectively?
- How is the reading organized?
- What assumptions did the author start with? How did that impact the argument?

You will find that reading critically and actively engaging with the material will allow you to more easily construct discussion questions, help you feel more prepared for class, and prepare well for writing assignments.
