Overview
This course is an introduction to major questions and themes in cultural sociology. We begin by examining culture, broadly conceived, from a variety of theoretical angles: Marxist, Weberian, Semiotic, Durkheimian, and Symbolic Interactionist. We then shift to focus on how cultural goods are produced, evaluated, distributed, and consumed in the US and similar societies. Finally, we examine the role of culture in social processes that are not always understood as “cultural”—the economy, political action, and globalization. Empirical topics covered in the course include religion, moral crusades, political discussion, workplace interaction, fine arts, mass entertainment, games and sport, bars and nightclubs, television, popular music, novels, Web 2.0, shopping, clothing, and food.

Course Requirements

Participation and Attendance (10%)
Participation in class discussions and active engagement with lectures are essential to your success in this course. To participate fully, read the materials listed for each session in the schedule prior to class and arrive prepared to share your thoughts, opinions, and questions.

Midterm and Final Exams (midterm 25%; final 25%)
The midterm (Monday, September 28) and final (Wednesday, December 9) will consist of identifications, short-answer questions, and essays based on readings, class lectures, and discussions.

Course Paper (30%)
This term paper, due on Monday December 7, will focus on a culture-relevant topic of your choosing, subject to my approval. It should be 15-20 pages long with no less than ten references. The goal of the paper is to discuss and evaluate one or more of the cultural theories covered in class by applying it to an empirical question or case which you have researched, either through secondary sources (i.e., library research) or by collecting your own data. More information and instructions will be provided in class.

Course Paper Preparatory Assignment & Presentation (10%)
Preparatory assignments throughout the term are designed to encourage and assist students in writing high-quality papers in a timely fashion. They include a list of potential paper topics and questions (due October 7), a finalized topic with theoretical framework and research strategy (due October 26), an outline of your paper and a bibliography including at least 8 of your minimum of 10 sources (due November 16), and a brief presentation of your paper to the class (November 30 or December 2). All will be graded on a check, check-plus, check-minus basis, and additional feedback will be given as needed.
Policies

Late Assignments: Late preparatory assignments will be docked one level (e.g., check becomes check-minus). Except in the case of extreme and well-documented emergencies, late final papers will be docked by a half letter grade. All late work must be submitted by Wednesday, December 9, at the final exam.

No Extra Credit: The best ways to improve your grade are to put effort into the course paper and study well for the final exam.

Honor Code: You are expected to act in accordance with the Georgia Tech Honor Code. See: http://www.honor.gatech.edu/plugins/content/index.php?id=9
Anyone engaging in acts which violate the honor code, such as cheating or plagiarism, will be penalized. If you are uncertain about what constitutes plagiarism, please ask!

Accommodating Disabilities: If you have any conditions which require accommodation, please alert me and provide documentation from the ADAPTS office as early in the term as possible so that arrangements can be made. No accommodations will be made retroactively. ADAPTS information can be found at: http://www.adapts.gatech.edu
